THIRTY-THIRD REPORT

OF THE INSPECTOR

OF REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS IN IRELAND.

TO THE
RIGHT HON. JOHN MORLEY, P.C., M.P., &c., &c.,
CHIEF SECRETARY TO THE LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR OF REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS IN IRELAND,
DUBLIN CASTLE,

21st June, 1895.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit the Thirty-third Report on Reformatory and Industrial Schools in Ireland. It deals mainly with their working and management during the year 1894.

At the close of 1894 there were 7 Reformatory and 69 Industrial Schools in existence in Ireland. The following Table shows the number of Roman Catholics and Protestant Schools respectively :—

TABLE.

	REFORMATORIES.		INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.
	Roman Catholics.	Pro- testants.	Roman Catholics.	Pro- testants.
Number of Schools for Boys, . . .	2	1	16	4
Do. Girls,	3	1	42	6
Do. Young Boys and Girls,	-	-	1	-
Total,	5	2	69	10

REFORMATORIES.

The following Table shows the number of Children in Reformatory Schools on 31st December, 1893, and on 31st December, 1894:—

—	On 31st December, 1893.			On 31st December, 1894.
	Males.	Fe- males.	Total.	Males.	Fe- males.	Total.
In School,	535	83	619	528	76	604
On Licence,	35	1	37	15	-	15
In Prison,	6	-	6	2	-	2
Absconded—sentence unexpired, .	8	-	8	4	-	4
In School—sentence expired, .	-	1	1	-	-	-
Total,	584	85	671	549	76	625

It will be perceived that the diminution of committals to Reformatories still continues. This decrease, however, can hardly be expected to go on much further. The change in the law under which imprisonment is no longer an obligatory portion of a Reformatory sentence must affect committals, but it is still too recent to justify the pronouncement of a definite opinion as to the extent of its effect on them.

Philipstown. The largest Reformatory is at Philipstown, King's County. There were 266 boys under detention at the close of 1894, as against 299 at the end of 1893. I described the working of this School so fully in my last Report that I do not propose to treat of it at any great length in the present one. Nothing has happened in it during the year calling for any special remark, except that it has lost the services of the Rev. Charles Cox, who has been transferred to Glencree, and who, during his term of office as Manager, made several reforms of a most valuable character, especially as regards discipline. During his time every rule not absolutely necessary for the preservation of order was abolished. No undue restraint was imposed upon the boys, and they were taught to use with moderation the liberty accorded to them. The present Manager, the Rev. Mr. Gubbins, is following in the steps of his predecessor with equally beneficial results.

Glencree. At Glencree there were 203 boys under detention at the close of 1894, as against 218 at the end of 1893. During the year there have been many more discharges than admissions; but the strength of the staff and the efficiency of the Industrial Department have been maintained. The discipline of the establishment is very similar to that at Philipstown, and severity is not one of its qualities. Order has been maintained without any difficulty.

During the year 1894, 39 boys were committed to this School. They were of the following ages: 3 were eleven, 4 were twelve, 3 were thirteen, 15 were fourteen, and 14 were fifteen years of age. The numbers from the various counties and cities were as follows:—

County Clare, . . .	1	County Limerick, . . .	1
County Dublin, . . .	8	Limerick City, . . .	3
Dublin City, . . .	26

Of these 39 boys, 4 had lost both parents, and 12 had only one parent living. Of the 35 who had one or both parents living, 17 had not been under parental control.

As to their educational proficiency, only 2 could read and write fairly well, 17 could read and write imperfectly, and 20 were illiterate.

The difficulty of affording elementary education in these Reformatory Schools is very great. Boys are sent to them at the ages of about 14 and 15 who have not learnt to read, and who it is very difficult to teach so effectively as to make up for past neglect. A Reformatory school must therefore always contain a far larger mixture of backward boys than any ordinary school. With regard to Glencree and to all the other Reformatories, I am able to report that the inmates are taught conscientiously, and that on the whole the results are satisfactory.

The health of the boys at Glencree has been good; there was but one death during the year—that was from meningitis, and the boy belonged to a delicate family.

There is but one Reformatory for Protestant boys in Ireland, Malone. situated near Belfast, known as the Malone Reformatory, and managed by a very representative Committee of Protestants in Belfast. This Reformatory was the only one in Ireland where there were more admissions than discharges during 1894. There were 23 boys committed to it during the year; of these 2 only were able to read and write well, 16 did so imperfectly, and 5 were totally ignorant. The health of the boys has been good, and the accounts of those who have left the Institution continue to be satisfactory. Their employment is reported as constant, and that in itself is an evidence of good character. As to the Female Reformatories, there were in existence at the close of 1894, 3 Roman Catholic—High Park, Drumcondra, St. Joseph's, Limerick, and Spark's Lake, Monaghan—and 1 Protestant, situated in Cork-street, Dublin. Female Reformatories.

Of these—two contained a very small number of inmates:—Spark's Lake having only 7 at the end of the year, and the Protestant Reformatory at Cork-street 8.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

The following Table shows that 8,553 children were under detention in Industrial Schools on 31st of December, 1894, as against 8,585 on 31st December, 1893:—

	On 31st December, 1893.			On 31st December, 1894.
	Males.	Females.	Total.	Males.	Females.	Total.
In School (number paid for under the Rules),	3,333	4,142	7,475	3,314	4,149	7,463
In School (in excess of the number paid for, or under 5 years of age),	65	232	347	41	309	350
On Licence,	300	380	689	327	332	659
Absconded—sentence unexpired, . . .	5	—	5	3	—	3
Remaining in School—sentence expired,	5	64	69	8	60	68
Total,	3,717	4,868	8,585	3,703	4,850	8,553

Of the children under detention at the close of 1894, 3,703 were boys, and 4,850 were girls. Of these, 1,222 boys and 1,285 girls came from Dublin.

ARTANE.

The most important Industrial School is Artane, in which 900 boys were under detention during the past year. 177 were discharged. They are accounted for as follows:—

To employment or service,	130
Returned to friends,	36
Emigrated,	1
Enlisted,	1
Specially discharged,	4
Absconders discharged by expiration of sentence, .	1
Discharged on account of insufficient grounds of detention,	4

Education.

The education given by the Christian Brothers leaves nothing to be desired, and I have great pleasure in stating that at the recent Examination by the Science and Art Department of South Kensington this School got the highest note possible to be obtained. I believe that it is almost the only case on record in which so large a School won such high distinction. The importance of this cannot be over-rated. I have repeatedly insisted on the necessity of drawing being included in the educational system of these Industrial Schools. It is of course the foundation of all Technical Training. No one who is not able to draw with skill can design well, and it is impossible for anyone to become a first-rate workman who is unable to design.

As regards health the sanitary condition of the School was ^{Health.} satisfactory during the year. There was a slight epidemic of scarlet fever, seven of the boys having contracted this disease. These cases were at once isolated and sent to Hospital and they all recovered. Thirteen of the boys suffered from influenza of a severe type. There were two deaths in the Institution during the year, and one boy died in St. Vincent's Hospital from the effects of a surgical operation. As showing the result of the ^{Disposal.} training which the boys receive in Artane it gives me much pleasure to state that during the three years ending 31st December, 1893, 510 boys have been discharged, of these 7 have died, 493 are doing well, and 10 only have turned out unsatisfactory.

On the morning of 27th October a fire occurred in the band- ^{Fire.} room, which extended to the concert-room. All the musical instruments in both rooms were destroyed, and considerable damage done to the buildings.

The promptness with which Captain Purcell and the Fire Brigade, who were notified by telephone, appeared on the scene, and the energy displayed by them on their arrival, saved the building from destruction.

OTHER ROMAN CATHOLIC SCHOOLS FOR SENIOR BOYS.

Of the other Schools for senior Roman Catholic boys I note ^{Tralee} with pleasure that there has been a great improvement in Tralee, where some very important alterations have been made on the premises.

The general health and education of the boys at Upton ^{Upton.} continues excellent. As regards the former, while giving due credit to all in authority for vigilance, I must attribute it, in part at least, to the excellent situation of the School, the spacious grounds around it, and to the circumstance that it possesses a playing field of such dimensions as no other Industrial School in Ireland can boast of. Galway and Letterfrack, both managed by the Christian Brothers, have, it is needless to say, a good record as far as education is concerned. The former obtained satisfactory results at the recent examinations by the Science and Art Department, South Kensington. ^{Galway and Letterfrack.}

The School which was formerly at Kilmora under the Christian ^{Kilmora.} Brothers has been removed to Carriglea on the south side of Dublin Bay, where suitable buildings have been erected in a spacious park, and the Institution is now under the management of Mr. Hoope, who was the founder of Artane, and who managed that Institution from its foundation in 1870 for a period of 20 years. The working of the other Schools for Senior Boys has been generally satisfactory and calls for no special comment.

JUNIOR SCHOOLS FOR ROMAN CATHOLIC BOYS.

There are a special class of Schools managed by Nuns for junior Roman Catholic boys. I continue to hold generally the favourable opinion of them which I have expressed in former Reports. They are undoubtedly the means of rescuing children from the temptations of the streets at an early age, and of implanting in their minds sound moral principles. Moreover, the teaching in them is exceedingly good, and boys leaving them are very seldom backward in their books. I wish, however, to impress upon the Managers the necessity of paying the greatest care to dietary, of being specially vigilant as regards all affections of the eyes, and of unceasingly inculcating habits of cleanliness.

ROMAN CATHOLIC FEMALE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

The Female Industrial Schools for Roman Catholics are all under the management of Nuns, and many of them such as Dundalk, the Good Shepherd in Cork, St. George's and St. Vincent's in Limerick, those at Waterford, New Ross, and others have all most satisfactory records of usefulness.

Queenstown
Industrial School.

As regards special industries taught in these Institutions, I may mention that the weaving industry which was established at Queenstown in the year 1890 continues to flourish, and constant employment is given to 17 young girls.

Kinsale,
Lacemaking.

The Convent School at Kinsale which has a remarkable and interesting history in connection with Irish Lace Industry, finds that the best workers in the extern Lace Department have learnt their work in the Industrial School. The Nuns, however, teach it only to those children who are likely to find it useful in after life. For instance, those belonging to the neighbourhood who propose to settle down in Kinsale, and find employment in connection with the Convent.

Newtownforbes.

The poultry farm in Newtownforbes brought in a profit last year of £51 9s. Although this was not a great success, it represents steady progress. It has likewise proved both beneficial and healthy to the children employed, some of whom have lately got situations with families who make the rearing of poultry a special business. Owing to the knowledge of the work acquired in the school these girls have given the very greatest satisfaction.

Sligo.

The poultry yard of the Sligo School is entirely used for supplying the Institution with eggs and poultry. It affords, however, a great opportunity for training the children, and is doing most excellent work.

PROTESTANT INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

There are ten Protestant Industrial Schools—six for girls and four for boys. The female school at Bray continues to have the advantage of the zeal and experience of Lady Kathleen Brabazon; and Hampton House and Shamrock Lodge are both directed by those who have managed them so excellently in the past. In both of them, special and successful arrangements have been made to keep up family life, and they are in many respects model Institutions.

There are two schools for Protestant boys in Belfast—Fox Lodge and the Grampian Training Ship. Boys are drafted from the former to the latter.

The ship, during the greater part of the year, had the full complement of boys. I still, however, maintain the opinion expressed in former reports, that it would be very much more in the interest of the Protestant population of Belfast that the expensive attempt to train lads for sea on a stationary ship should be renounced, and a suitable Institution established on shore for boys who may be committed to Industrial Schools.

Very few of the boys discharged from the Grampian take to a sailor's life. In 1892, 50 were discharged, 7 joined the Merchant Service, but not one joined the Navy. In 1893, 54 were discharged, and 9 were sent to sea; and in 1894, 69 were discharged, of these only 6 went to sea, and not one entered the Royal Navy. This state of things seems to me likely to be permanent. The majority of these boys, in consequence of their constitutions having been undermined by hardship in infancy, early neglect, and hereditary taints, are not sufficiently strong for a sailor's life. The health of the boys during the year has been good. A mild epidemic of catarrhal ophthalmia occurred, which however soon yielded to medical treatment. The educational condition of the School is good, and discipline and order have been well maintained.

The Meath School at Blackrock has prospered during the year. As regards education, its position is highly creditable, and the teaching continues to be most careful and efficient. A great improvement has recently been carried out, in the erection of a gymnasium for the boys at a total cost of over £800. It is 70 feet long, 36 feet broad, and its height extends to 25 feet. This is the most important new departure made in any Industrial School in Ireland since I have been in office, and it would be most desirable that every male school in the country should contain a similar structure, where boys could not only be taught gymnastics, but be drilled regularly every day. The erection of the gymnasium decided the Committee to employ a regular Instructor in gymnastic exercises, who would also aid in the general management. In connection with this school the "Gordon Home," about which I spoke in my last year's Report, and in which boys who have left, and who are engaged in business in the city of Dublin, can live, continues fully to realize the expectations of its founder.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT—REFORMATORY SCHOOLS.

During the past year the total amount received for these Schools reached £15,198 18s. 4d., which was £1,174 12s. 4d. less than in 1893. The subjoined table gives the respective amounts for the two years :—

—	1893.	1894.	Increase.	Decrease.

EXPENDITURE.

Comparing the items of expenditure between the last two years the following table shows that there has been a decrease in 1894 over 1893 of £214 7s. 8d., this is easily accounted for by the fact that there has been a falling off in the number of children under detention.

Appended is a return showing the cost per head for each child during the last two years. There is an increase per head of £1 7s. 6½d. The explanation, of course, is that as the number of children become smaller the cost for each increases.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

RECEIPTS FOR 1894.

The various sums received on behalf of these Schools during the two years ending 31st of December, 1893 and 1894, were as follows:—

	1893.	1894.	Increase.	Decrease.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Received from Treasury,	97,516 13 2	97,416 11 2	—	100 2 0

Total,	156,115 16 4	154,432 17 0½	268 3 6	2,680 16 9½

EXPENDITURE.

The total expenditure for 1894 amounted to £171,134 4s. 9½d., which was made up of the following items:—

	£ s. d.		£ s. d.
Salaries for Officers,	15,870 16 10	Medical Expenses,	2,478 7 9½
Rations for do.,	8,574 1 6	Sundries, Rewards,	2,610 17 4
Food for inmates,	59,287 4 8	Rent,	3,003 15 1
Clothing for do.,	20,438 2 8	Interest,	8,423 11 11
Washing, Fuel, Light,	12,015 19 6	Disposal,	3,392 18 2
Repairs, Rates, and Taxes,	7,587 6 2½	Building,	15,614 3 6
Furniture and Sundries,	6,458 9 7½	Loss on Industrial Department,	508 19 10
Printing, &c.,	2,303 19 6
Travelling, &c.,	865 11 1	Total,	171,134 4 9½

This is an increase of £10,181 14s. 7d. over the previous year and is due to the very exceptional increase of £10,139 17s. 11½d. expended in buildings. There is no great difference in the other items of expenditure.

The average cost per head for each child during the past year was £21 4s. 11d.

PARENTAL MONEY.

The receipts under this heading for the past year amounted to £870 9s. 11d., and is thus shown:—

—	Reformatories.	Industrial Schools.	Total.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Dublin,	230 6 2	137 8 6	367 14 8
Provinces,	166 2 5	467 12 10	633 15 2
Total,	396 8 7	605 1 4	970 9 11

In 1893 the amount collected was £982 4s. 6d. This shows a falling off of £111 14s. 7d., and is chiefly attributable to the decrease of the number of children committed to Reformatory Schools. As parents of these children can be sent to prison in default of contributing towards their support they prefer paying the amount imposed on them by the Magistrates to going there. In the case of parents of children in Industrial Schools Magistrates have no such power.

BALTIMORE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The improvement and consequent development of the Fisheries, particularly on the West Coast, are so much dependent on the success of this Institution that I propose to call more attention to it than to other Industrial Schools which may not have such material effect on the prosperity of a great national resource.

Ireland possesses a coast which, with the indentation of estuaries, is considerably over 2,000 miles in length; she has, therefore, an extent of ocean and shore greater than most other countries. One would therefore think she ought to be the natural home of fishermen. That she is not so, is beyond all question, largely owing to her disastrous industrial history. In the early part of the 17th century the sea fisheries of Ireland were prosperous and extensive. During the Civil War, like all the other industries of the country, this one became almost extinct; and the transportation of a large number of the most active and energetic fishermen to Barbadoes and other sugar growing colonies effectually completed its annihilation. Towards the second decade of the present century it began to revive. In 1846, just before the famine, nearly 20,000 boats were engaged in fishing; and the number of men and boys who worked them were about 113,000. There were also a number of curing houses erected that year, which did much good work in providing markets for fish, in giving employment to many persons, and serving as technical work-shops for the fishing population. The famine, however, destroyed all this. The curing houses were closed in the year 1848, just as they were beginning to be really useful, and all attempts, however meagre and inadequate, to provide any means of special instruction for fishermen finally ceased.

The result of this neglect was summed up very cogently by the late Rev. Charles Davis in a "Paper on the Deep Sea Fisheries of Ireland," read before the Scientific and Literary Society, Cork, in '86—He says

"But beyond all question the greatest drawback to the progress of the Irish Fisheries and their cognate industries, is the want of skill in technical knowledge. Even capital without skill is useless. No attempt has been hitherto made to instruct our fishermen in the improved modern systems of fishing. The only knowledge they possess is acquired by association with the strangers who frequent our shores. . . . Except in a few favoured localities the want of technical skill is universal all round the coast of Ireland."

To remedy this state of things was the object of the Founders of Baltimore School. They proposed, in addition to ordinary literary education, to teach boys every art connected with fishing, from the making of lines and nets to the building of boats, curing of fish, etc., and the most improved modes of fishing, out of first class fishing smacks.

In the establishment of a school of this description, the difficulties are many and great. Peculiar technical training is required. This can only be carried out at very great expense. A vessel fully equipped costs from £700 to £800, and she can carry only two boys in addition to her regular crew. This was one of the great primary difficulties which the Founders of the School had to meet, in addition to the very large expenditure required for building.

To meet the latter the Government generously made a free grant of £5,500.

The Grand Jury of the County Cork contributed £1,000; the Duke of Norfolk, £550; Miss Corcoran, £400; Lord Carberry, £200; the Baroness and Mr. Burdett Coutts, £200; the Fishmongers Company, £105; Lord Iveagh, £100, and many others; the total amount of contributions to end of the year 1894 amounting to £5,796 3s. 3d.

The expenditure on the buildings alone up to the present amounts to £7,832 9s. 8d. Each year, as educational requirements have advanced, structural improvements and additions are constantly demanded and have to be met. The capitation grant has defrayed the current costs of the Institution but has left little, if any, margin to meet exigencies, or to extend its usefulness by increasing the fishing fleet, which is very necessary. At present there are only five first class vessels working from the Institution.

Difficulties of Working.

The Founders of the School expected that there would be more boys requiring admission from the seashoard counties than they could accommodate. In this they were disappointed, as from several counties shuttling on the sea, where boys were accustomed to some kind of seafaring pursuits, and would naturally be more likely to follow fishing than others from the inland counties, there was an objection on the part of many Pastors of parishes to allow boys destined for sea life, even though destitute and without proper guardianship, to be committed by magistrates, stamping them, as they said, with the seal of degradation.

Admission of Boys from inland Counties.

It became necessary, therefore, to receive many lads from inland counties. Without them the Institution could not have been maintained. It is extraordinary how well several boys from inland counties have turned out. In my last report an account is given of the pluck and bravery of two of these boys while at sea during one of the severest gales that has visited the southern coast for many years past.

Discharge of boys at 16
years of age.

Another great difficulty in making this School what it ought to be is the obligation imposed by the Act of Parliament of discharging boys when they arrive at sixteen years of age. This has been commented on in previous reports, and I cannot do better now than quote the following extract from my report dated 9th June, 1894:—

"The difficulty of making boys at Baltimore thoroughly efficient sailors is very great, because as the law now stands the Industrial Schools Act requires their discharge at the age of sixteen. Whatever may be said as to the advisability of discharging children from Industrial Schools at this age, I think no such obligation should exist in the case of a Piscatorial School. This seems clear from the fact that no boy under the age of fourteen can be sent to sea. The risks to life and the hardships to be endured while fishing all night are too many and too great for boys of a more tender age. It will therefore be observed that a boy at Baltimore has only two fishing seasons for his training as a fisherman, and cannot as a rule obtain sufficiently full instruction either in fishing or the handling of a first-class vessel to make him thoroughly proficient. Moreover, a boy of sixteen cannot get the place of a man in a vessel, and consequently cannot obtain a man's share, which he could easily do at the age of eighteen. An amendment of the law to enable boys to be detained to the age of eighteen is therefore most desirable if this School is to be given a fair chance of fulfilling the purpose for which it was founded."

After another year's experience, and close attention to the working of this School, these views have not only been confirmed, but are even more deeply impressed on me.

An illustration of the good effects resulting from keeping a boy steadily at fishing after the age of sixteen years is given in an interesting pamphlet lately published by Henry Stanley Newman, Esq., entitled "The Harvest of the Sea for Ireland," to be had at "The Orphans' Printing Press, Leominster." After visiting Baltimore he published his impressions about the School, and when commenting on the question of compulsory discharge at sixteen, he writes as follows:—

"A practical illustration of carrying on fishing instruction is exemplified in the case of a young lad only nineteen years of age, the son of the fishing Instructor at the School, who, in consequence of being kept steadily at fishing since he was almost a child, is now the master of a first-class fishing smack, and working out of Baltimore, having two of the School boys on board. The vessel and gear are valued for at least £600 to £700, and this young skipper has full charge of this valuable property, and the command of a crew of seven men."

The following table shows the number of Boys discharged from the School during the 4 years ending 31st December, 1894, and the occupations to which they have since gone.

Notwithstanding all the difficulties which have hampered the working of this Fishery School, it is pleasing to be able to record that out of eighty-seven boys discharged from the Institution during the last four years, twenty-seven have gone into pursuits connected in some way or other with the sea, viz:—

So far as the Governors have had the means they have carried out the original programme laid down by the Founders of the School. Still much remains to be done to complete it. With all the attention and care they can give to its full development, and the records of their attendance at the regular and special meetings of the Board reveal the active interest they take in it, the want of funds has been a great stumbling block in carrying out the original intention of its framers. The accounts, which are always open for inspection, are carefully kept, and regularly audited by the Government auditor, show the economy and care with which the School has been managed.

There should, however, be attached to the Institution, instead of five, at least ten to twenty vessels, with a sufficient number of men, capable of taking boys over fourteen years of age to sea during all fishing seasons. These lads should be kept constantly at sea till they are eighteen, the former years of their residence in the School being devoted mainly to education. By this means a good race of fishermen, well educated, would be brought into existence, and if seven or eight of these lads on their discharge joined in a fishing vessel as co-proprietors, no better security could be had for the advance of money now available for the assistance of fishermen.

In my last report I mentioned that at my suggestion the Dietary. Governors had made considerable alterations in the dietary.

Since the beginning of the present year more important changes have again been made by them at their own instance. On the first of the New Year they placed the whole of the cooking and dietary under an Instructor who had received a diploma from the Science and Art Department, and appointed a cook to receive instructions as to the best and most varying food to give the boys. This arrangement was carried out for a month, and the method of dietary has since been continued. So well do I think of this change that I have directed a week's dietary, taken at random, to be published in my present report, together with the forms of books kept recording the dietary of not only the boys but of all officers and servants as a useful guide for other schools. These form an addition to the usual Appendices. The books are directed by the Governors to be always left open for inspection, so that any friends of the pupils or any person interested can ascertain at once what the boys had for breakfast, dinner, or supper on any day throughout the year. Great credit is due to the Governors for laying down a system which, if followed by other schools, must prove of incalculable benefit and interest. It is gratifying also to know that while a greater variety of wholesome and better cooked food is now given to the boys, the expense has not been increased. The average cost of the old dietary was over £11 a week, that of the present about £10.

The boys are now regularly drilled, and gymnastics are taught. Drill and Gymnastics. I should like, however, to see a covered gymnasium, like the one at the Meath School, Blackrock, erected on the grounds.

The education at Baltimore has hitherto been conducted rather Education. too rigidly on the lines laid down for National Schools, and some modification in the programme is necessary.

The attendance of pupils at National Schools being more or less irregular, and many of the children being withdrawn from school at an early age, the Board's regulations are framed so as to concentrate almost all the teachers' efforts, especially in the junior classes, on the instruction of the pupils in certain obligatory subjects. Variation from National System.

With this view the rules do not permit any extra branch being taught for Results' Fees until the children are promoted into the Second Class, when vocal music may be taken up; drawing may be commenced in the Third Class, but no other extra branch can be commenced—at least with a view to earning Results' Fees—until the pupils have passed into the Fifth Class, when, under ordinary circumstances, they would be about eleven or twelve years of age.

These restrictions would not apply to a Technical School, such as that at Baltimore, where the lads are in constant attendance, with an ample teaching staff, and the entire day available for instruction of one kind or another—omitting of course the time required for recreation.

Special subjects of instruction.

In such a school less time is required for what are regarded as obligatory subjects in National Schools, and suitable extra subjects, of which a knowledge would be valuable in technical branches, should receive more attention, and, in case of some of the subjects at least, be taken up earlier. Drawing might be taught to pupils of all classes, and algebra and geometry commenced as soon as the lads were possessed of the attainments required for the Fourth Class: Trigonometry could not with advantage be taken up until the boys had attained a fair knowledge of geometry, and navigation could not be introduced until they possessed a pretty advanced knowledge of both geometry and trigonometry.

Net-mending,
Carpentry,
&c.

Net-mending, carpentry or general handicraft, cottage gardening, and the like, could be taught to the lads in all the classes.

By forming a programme combining studies which are at present obligatory, with extra and optional subjects in the curriculum for National Schools, a suitable course of instruction might be arranged for the Baltimore Piscatorial School.

I have therefore suggested to the Governors one on the following lines:—

Suggested course of instruction.

Second Class.—Reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, elementary instruction in drawing.

Third Class.—Reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, geography, drawing, cottage gardening, and net-making or mending.

Fourth Class.—Reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, geography, drawing, carpentry, net-making, algebra, and geometry.

Fifth Class.—Same subjects as in Fourth Class, with due extension of programme of requirements in each.

Sixth Class.—Reading, writing—including instruction in correct form and style of letter-writing—arithmetic, spelling, geography, drawing, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, mechanics, navigation, with technical subjects such as net-making and carpentry.

When the pupils reach the Sixth Class they ought to possess such a competent knowledge of reading, writing, spelling, and geography that only occasional lessons should be required in these subjects, attention being mainly concentrated on the remaining branches.

Instruction in algebra, geometry, trigonometry, mechanics, and navigation would of course be imparted only to boys showing ability for learning them, and in whose cases a knowledge of these subjects would be likely to be practically useful in their subsequent careers.

The boys should not necessarily be kept for a year in any Class, but be promoted as soon as it was plain that their knowledge was such as to make it desirable to do so.

Pupils of average intelligence, and properly taught, should complete the above course between 14 and 15 years of age.

In bringing these remarks to a conclusion I think the idea of establishing a school of this kind was a happy one, and notwithstanding many difficulties it could be made a useful national institution. It is, however, my settled conviction that it will never fulfil the end for which it was founded as long as it is worked under the Industrial School Act, as that Act at present stands. Moreover, if the suggestions I have offered are ever carried out radical changes will have to be made in its management. A system of discipline, fairly suited to the actual condition of the School, would be totally unfit for young sailors of seventeen or eighteen years of age. Rigid separation would have to be enforced between boys kept steadily at school and the lads who go to sea. New buildings would have to be erected. An addition of several ships should be made to the present fleet, having a much larger tonnage than any now employed upon the coast, capable of remaining many days on distant fishing grounds, and of weathering the fiercest gale of the Atlantic.

The possibility of making the School a National Institution.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The health of the children in all the schools has been most satisfactory. I am glad to notice that the medical attendance is far more regular and frequent than when I first came into office. I trust this improvement will continue; for it seems to me that the more regular medical attendance, and greater attention paid to sanitary arrangements and dietary, account largely for the reduced death-rate. In 1890, 1891, and 1892, out of about 10,000 children under detention the number of deaths were 82, 89, and 81, while, for last year and the year before, out of about the same number of children the deaths were 70 and 64, respectively.

In concluding this report, I have again to express my acknowledgment of the assistance which I have received from Managers, and my appreciation of the readiness with which they have accepted and carried out any suggestions which have been made for the improvement of the Institutions entrusted to their care, and their earnest desire of making them capable of meeting new and varying social wants, and thereby continuing to render solid service to the country.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ROWLAND BLENNERHASSETT, BART., D.L.
